

Friday, October 31, 2014

Professor Adam Olson has been my adviser, teacher, and work-study supervisor during my time at Shenandoah University. He has helped me immensely through every role he has had by being communicative and organized.

As an advisor, Professor Olson has always been available for discussion about my schedule. I have e-mailed him and stopped by his office to discuss my tracking sheet and scheduling new classes many times throughout my college career. He and I would talk about the various courses and opportunities available through Shenandoah University to help me enrich my resume and better myself as an audio engineer before graduation. If he was not in his office, he would be available by e-mail and would respond in a timely manner.

Professor Olson has always impressed me as a teacher due to his vast knowledge of audio equipment and technology. He has taught his classes in a manner that provokes discussion and debate amongst the class to further our understanding of the class and has high standards for his students to succeed in each class he teaches. If there are any issues with homework or what we discussed in class, he is always available for talking about what we covered and verifying project standards.

Working for Professor Olson has been a new challenge, since it is allowing me to work in the recording facilities in Ruebush. Professor Olson has been doing a great job of helping me learn about the facilities and keep on task. He has a checklist to keep everything organized so I know exactly what I need to do when I come in. If I have a question, I can approach him at any point and ask him for help when needed.

Alex Slohm